For example. Vendors selling products or services in person or online through The WOW Factor project are not protected from public requirements and legislation for the field they are working in under this PMA. If they want to provide professional services, they will still be required to provide public certification and recognition to do so. Regulatory bodies like the ATO, TGA and ASIC can and still will audit and investigate Private Members seeking to bypass legal professional requirements. BLB does not condone or provide a private jurisdiction for this bypassing of public systems. The member would need to have their own certified Private Members Association to operate in the jurisdiction to allow such interactions with our members.
